Equality and Diversity Policy

4.1.2 ii. Equality Analysis Activity

4.1.2.1 Having due regard means consciously thinking about the three main aims of the duty as part of the College’s decision-making process and understanding how RHACC is performing in relation to them.

We do this by conducting equality analysis activity that includes stakeholder feedback, data collection and analysis, and which ensures college functions are analysed along with curriculum areas. This activity is managed by the RHACC Quality team and monitored by the Equality and Diversity Monitoring Group that is chaired by the Principal. Additional scrutiny is provided by the Governing Body, and in particular the Quality and Standards Committee.

Whenever proposals are made or policies, procedures or practices are reviewed we consider the potential equality impacts.

4.1.2.2 Having due regard to advancing equality of opportunity includes, for example, the College taking action to continue eliminating achievement gaps through close review of enrolment and achievement information and the holding of managers to account for reducing any achievement gaps in their provision.

4.1.2.3 Having due regard to the need to foster good relations will include, for example, ensuring that teachers embed the promotion of Equality and Diversity themes confidently and successfully in lessons, challenge stereotypes and ensure all our students are fully equipped for life and work in a modern society.

4.1.2.4 Equality and diversity is central to all we do and all College students, staff and stakeholders will be made aware of the college’s Equality and Diversity Policy through induction and regular training.

5. Monitoring Objectives

5.1 We will set and review objectives on an annual basis through our self-assessment process, reporting them to Governors and sharing them with learners through the Self-Assessment Report and Quality Improvement Plan. We will share them with staff through the Staff Forum. We will review the policy regularly and update it in line with feedback from staff and learners and best practice and legislation changes.

6. Breaches of this policy

6.1 Staff and students are expected to work within the letter and spirit of this policy and in support of all aspects of the framework. In line with the provisions of the Equality Act, 2010, the College believes that ‘unacceptable behaviour’ is behaviour that violates a person's dignity or creates an intimidating, hostile, degrading, humiliating or offensive environment for that person. Unacceptable behaviour will not be tolerated by anyone and will be challenged. Any member of staff or student acting in an offensive or discriminatory manner, against the aims of the framework or otherwise breaching this policy or the Learner Code of Conduct or Employee Code of Conduct will be dealt with under our staff or student disciplinary procedures as appropriate.

Equality and Diversity Policy

Appendix A - Grounds for discrimination, harassment or victimisation

The protected characteristics listed in the Equality Act, 2010 are:

- Age (including age group)
- Disability
- Gender reassignment (undergoing or has undergone)
- Marriage and civil partnership
- Pregnancy and maternity
- Race (includes colour, nationality, ethnic and national origin)
- Religion or belief (including a lack of religion, belief is a religious or philosophical belief)
- Sex
- Sexual orientation (same, opposite and both sexes)

Appendix B - Definitions

The following definitions are derived from the Equality Act 2010.

Discrimination

The definition of discrimination is complicated; however, essentially it is treating an individual or group of people less favourably as a result of a protected characteristic (whether actual, perceived or by association) and cannot be shown to be a proportionate means of achieving a legitimate aim. Indirect discrimination occurs if a provision, criterion or practice is applied that is discriminatory in relation to a relevant protected characteristic and it is applied to people who do not share that protected characteristic, it puts a person at a particular disadvantage with those who do share that protected characteristic or it puts a person at a disadvantage that cannot be shown to be a proportionate means of achieving a legitimate aim. Dual discrimination can occur as a result of a combination of two protected characteristics. Note: discrimination may not be intentional, but an unintended consequence of an unrelated action.

Harassment

Harassment is unwanted conduct related to a relevant protected characteristic that has the purpose or effect of violating dignity or creating an intimidating, hostile, degrading, humiliating or offensive environment. Unwanted conduct of a sexual nature or that is related to gender reassignment or sex may also be harassment if it leads to less favourable treatment as a result of rejection or submission to the conduct. Harassment does not have to be deliberate; it depends on the perception of the person harassed, the circumstances of the case and whether it was reasonable for the conduct to have the effect outlined above. Note: Our procedures do not accept any form of harassment, even if not related to a protected characteristic.

Victimisation

Victimisation occurs where a person is subject to a detriment as a result of doing a protected act or if there is a belief that they have done a protected act. A protected act is bringing proceedings under the Equality Act, giving evidence or information, doing other things in connection with the Equality Act or making an allegation that another person has contravened the Equality Act.
